Alok Vaid-Menon is an Indian-American writer, performance artist, and media personality. They are gender non-conforming and transfeminine and known for their creative work which they have presented in over 40 countries.
Anjimile is a Queer and Trans song maker from Boston, MA. This Indie-folk artist started playing guitar in the sixth grade. Recently, they recorded a new album with a grant from the city of Boston, and went on an East Coast tour in the fall 2019. Anjimile was selected as one of NPR’s 20 Artists to Watch in 2019.

Check out their music: https://anjimile.bandcamp.com/
Transgender Day of Visibility

Aspen Finch Eberhardt
They. Them. Theirs

Aspen is a community organizer and Operations Manager for Greater Boston PFLAG. PFLAG which provides support, education, and advocacy for LGBTQ folks. They enjoy playing video games, watching anime, and reading comic books.
Bamby Salcedo is the founder of the Los Angeles-based TransLatin@ Coalition, which according to its website "is an organization form[ed] by Trans Latin@ immigrant leaders who have come together in 2009 to organize and advocate for the needs of Trans Latin@s who are immigrants and reside in the US."
Transgender Day of Visibility

Leilani Mroczkowski
They. Them. Theirs

Hailing from the Midwest, Leilani has been living and growing in Massachusetts since 2011 and growing food, designing and installing landscapes, and teaching people of all ages how to grow through an environmental and racial justice lens. They are passionate about community building and organizing. Most recently they have been studying the power of connecting with ancestors and plantcestors.
TRANS GENDER DAY OF VISIBILITY

LEO SHENG
He. Him. His

Born in Hunan, China, Leo grew up outside of Ann Arbor, Michigan. He studied sociology at the University of Michigan and graduated in 2017. While there, he wrote and directed two student films, both of which were shown at the Michigan Theater. His first work, Adam (2018), is an example of his activism and advocacy in trans and nonbinary communities. He currently stars in the L Word: Generation Q.